

COMMENT OF THE DAY

Main Question

THE contrast between President Eisenhower's statement on the fruitlessness of the US-Soviet discussions relating to atomic problems and that of Pravda, the official Russian organ, is notable. The President's declaration was carefully phrased to express disappointment, but to avoid recrimination. Pravda attacked the Eisenhower proposal of last December on which the conversations were based, as an attempt to "evade the main issue of banning the use of atomic weapons." It is only necessary to look back to the President's speech of December 8 to see how baseless the accusation is. He spoke of the instant readiness of the United States Government to seek for "an acceptable solution of the atomic armaments race which overshadows not only the peace, but the very life of the world." He supported the UN Assembly resolution of November 24 which had recommended the setting up of a sub-committee of the Disarmament Commission, which would consist of the "powers principally involved" and which should also enter into "diplomatic talks" for the same purpose. His proposal for the creation of an international pool of fissionable materials for peaceful purposes was, in his own words, "a new conception" which the United States was prepared to carry into effect. It was not an isolated or separate plan. It was part of an evasion of the main issue, but an additional contribution to its solution. Two lines of action stemmed from the President's speech. Firstly, on the initiative of the US, the private two-power discussions between the American and Soviet governments. Secondly, on the initiative of the United Kingdom, the setting up of the sub-committee of the Disarmament Commission.

THE line stressed in the Pravda article suggests that in the committee as well as in the conversations the Soviet thesis is that the "banning" of atomic weapons is to be treated as a separate issue which is to have priority over all other issues of disarmament. And that is a thesis which the non-Communist countries have never been able to accept, and cannot accept. For one thing the banning of atomic weapons must be dependent on the creation of a really effective system of international control—which the Soviet Government has never been willing to accept. For another, as the United Nations decided in 1952, questions of "atomic" and "conventional" armaments cannot be treated separately. Disarmament is indivisible. The agreed task of the sub-committee was, as Mr Selwyn Lloyd said at its first meeting last month, "to devise a system of mutual, supervised, comprehensive disarmament. If, as the Pravda article seems ominously to suggest, the Russians are trying to limit discussion to the 'main question of banning the use of atomic weapons,' any progress seems unlikely. Maintenance of the Soviet armed strength at high level during the immediate postwar years has been the prime cause of the current 'armaments race.' The 'main question' is the ending of that race, its burdens and its dangers. The banning, with adequate safeguards, of atomic weapons is a desirable and indeed necessary. But it is not sufficient, nor can it be separated from the problem of which it is only a part. It seems to be the Soviet Government, which, by insisting on this impracticable and impossible separation of inseparables, is seeking to 'evade the main question.'

BAD DAY AT GENEVA

Royal Tournament Incident

London, June 8. A frightened horse reared up in front of Queen Mother Elizabeth at the Royal tournament here today, throwing to the ground the groom who was holding it. The groom scrambled to his feet and quelled the horse. The Queen Mother had stepped down into the arena of Earl's Court to present awards to the winners in a horse jumping competition and was standing there with three riders lined up before her when the incident occurred. She continued calmly to present the awards.—China Mail Special.

Laniel's Chances Of Survival Diminish

Paris, June 8. Premier Joseph Laniel's chances of surviving tomorrow's debate on the China were cut sharply today by developments in Washington and Geneva. M. Laniel won a one-day postponement of the debate today but diplomatic observers said the statements of the Soviet Foreign Minister, Mr. V. M. Molotov, in Geneva and of the US Secretary of State, Mr. John Foster Dulles, in Washington, had reduced his chances of winning a vote of confidence. Mr. Molotov today hinted that the Communists would demand more than 48 per cent of Indo-China as their price for peace. After hearing Mr. Molotov, M. Bidault said: "It's all over." Then he left for Paris to face the National Assembly. M. Laniel's chances also were said to be reduced by Mr. Dulles' statement that he had no plan at present to ask Congress for authority to intervene in the Indo-China war. Mr. Dulles said the US would consider intervening if Communist China engaged in open aggression in Indo-China. Mr. Molotov's hint of Communist territorial demands virtually doomed hope of reaching an honourable Indo-Chinese settlement in Geneva. Diplomatic observers were not optimistic. They noted that M. Laniel asked for postponement of the Indo-Chinese debate so that the National Assembly could hear M. Bidault's report on the negotiations at Geneva.—United Press.

GIVEN ASYLUM

Copenhagen, June 8. A Russian stewardess, who jumped into the sea at Thorshavn in the Faroe Islands from a Soviet trawler, has been given the right to remain in Denmark, according to a message received here. She will sail to Denmark by the first available ship.—Reuter.

US Aid Programme Plea

Washington, June 8. Foreign Aid Chief Harold E. Stassen appealed today for continuance of the multi-billion dollar foreign aid programme as a matter of "urgent necessity." Mr. Stassen told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that foreign aid "is the route that will lead towards the best prospects of peace and prosperity for ourselves and others." The Administration has asked for $3,447,000,000 in military and economic aid in the coming fiscal year. Of this total, nearly $1,000,000,000 is for military aid to Southeast Asia. Mr. Stassen, in his prepared statement, did not touch directly on the Indo-China crisis. He admitted there have been "mistakes" in the foreign aid programme and that at times it has "fallen short" of its goals. But on the whole, he said, "it is a record of a successful United States endeavour" which has "contributed directly to the prospects of peace, the assurance of security, and the economic well-being of the people of the United States and of the other free nations of the world." Mr. Stassen noted that the request is $1,300,000,000 less than approved by Congress last year. But barring "major and unexpected and adverse events" United States foreign aid objectives can be realised under the reduced amount because of the "accumulated success of the programme." Using some of the $9,800,000,000 in carry-over funds, the foreign aid agencies expect actually to spend about $3,000,000,000 in the coming fiscal year—or about the same as in the fiscal year 1954, Mr. Stassen said.—United Press.

Open Clash Over Supervisory Commission

MOLOTOV ATTACKS US INDO-CHINA POLICY

Geneva, June 8. The West and Russia clashed openly at Geneva today on the question of whether Communist nations should help supervise an Indo-China armistice.

Mr Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, formally proposed that India, Pakistan, Burma, Indonesia and Ceylon—the "Colombo Powers"—should be responsible for supervision.

But Mr Vyacheslav Molotov, Russian Foreign Minister, reaffirmed the Communist view that the Supervisory Commission should consist of Poland, Czechoslovakia, India and Pakistan.

Mr Walter Bedell Smith, head of the American delegation, said the United States would only accept "impartial" members for the Commission.

M. Georges Bidault, the French Foreign Minister, said a Commission comprising the powers named by Mr Molotov "would not give any guarantees to anyone."

He said there must be no vetoes for, without the possibility of quick decisions, "there will be disorder and unforeseen risks."

"Without efficient control, I do not see any solution," he said.

The Ministers were speaking at a plenary session of the nine-nation Indo-China conference—the first open meeting for three weeks. It lasted nearly eight hours, the longest since the Far East conference opened on April 28.

Mr Eden, proposing the Colombo powers as the armistice supervisors, said there could be no danger of deadlock in such a Commission acting by majority vote.

Mr Molotov launched a strong attack on American policy, remarking that "aggressive circles in some countries fear success in Geneva" and that certain delegations aimed at "proving the impossibility" of ending the seven-year-old war.

They intended this "to prepare a further extension of the war" and Thailand's recent request for United Nations observers to be sent to her Indo-China border was "an attempt to prepare a pretext for American intervention in the internal affairs of Indo-China," he said.

He was backed by Mr Pham Van Dong, Vietnamese Deputy Premier, who said the Thai request was "instigated by the United States" and that the West wanted to internationalise the war by American intervention.

UN "DOMINATED" He said he would not accept United Nations supervision of an Indo-China armistice because the United Nations was "dominated by the United States."

Mr Eden, who presided, said that as the Neutral Commission proposed by Mr Molotov was composed half of Communist and half of non-Communist states, the danger of deadlock would clearly arise.

Mr Tep Phan, Cambodian Foreign Minister, said Cambodia had decided to agree that an Indo-China ceasefire should be simultaneous in all three Indo-China states, but still insisted on a separate settlement providing for withdrawal of Vietnamese forces into Vietnam.

Mr Pham Van Dong, Vietnamese Deputy Premier, complained of delay in starting on the spot talks between the High Command staffs in Indo-China.

M. Bidault, who himself complained that the talks between the commands at Geneva were going "too slowly", authorised his spokesman to reveal that General Paul Ely, new French Commander in Indo-China, had been ordered to contact the Vietnamese and fix a date for the parallel talks in Indo-China.

Another plenary session will be held tomorrow. The official French spokesman said after today's session that "the Communists stopped the conference in its tracks."

A United States spokesman said the Communists had behaved "in a purely destructive way" in order "to make the most unfavourable impact on French public opinion and the Parliamentary situation."

(M. Bidault faces the French National Assembly tomorrow (Wednesday) to explain the Government's handling of the Indo-China question. The debate is a crucial one which could result in the fall of the Laniel Government.)

A British spokesman said Mr Molotov's speech contained "nothing that was particularly new or helpful," but the Chinese Communist spokesman claimed it would "help to overcome the present stagnancy here."—Reuter.

Still No Agreement

London, June 9. Disarmament talks between the five major "atomic" powers entered their fourth week here yesterday with East and West still disagreeing on basic principles, according to diplomatic observers.

The secret meetings between representatives of the United States, Russia, Canada, France and Britain are expected to end soon.

The delegates, meeting as a Sub-Committee of the United Nations Disarmament Commission, have been seeking an "acceptable" solution for world disarmament including atomic control.

A communiqué issued after today's session said the delegates had "continued their discussion." The next meeting will be held on Friday.—Reuter.

Cement Company's Precipitator Operating "Quite Successfully"

The Green Island Cement Company's new precipitator (smoke reducing equipment) which was installed almost a month ago is now operating "quite successfully", the General Manager of the Company, Mr J. S. C. Neel, said today.

He said the precipitator had experienced some "teething troubles" last month but was now operating satisfactorily.

Airline officials who in the past have been among the most critical of Green Island's dense steam plume because of its danger to landing aircraft said yesterday they had noticed some improvement since the precipitator had been installed.

Hongkong's Director of Civil Aviation, Mr M. J. Muspratt-Williams, said the precipitator had "made a tremendous difference" to the steam output.

"There have been one or two occasions when it has been bad, of course, but during the last month we have been keeping a daily even hourly check on the steam output in order to get a thorough analysis. This has shown a vast improvement in the steam output."

"While the new equipment is not perfect—for there have been short periods when the steam has gone back to its original state—we feel the equipment has made a tremendous difference on the whole."

OTHER REACTIONS A number of airline officials interviewed yesterday were not willing to go quite as far as Mr Muspratt-Williams. They said that while there had been some improvement in the smoke plume this was only true in fine weather and whenever humidity was high and moisture clouds hung low over the colony the precipitator made virtually no difference at all.

These officials believe that the steam nuisance will not be effectively reduced until the Green Island Cement Company installs the rotary slurry filter which the company hopes to have in operation by the end of 1955.

This filter, which will cost about $500,000, is expected to reduce the water content of slurry fed into the kiln by more than 60 per cent. This should mean a reduction of 60 per cent in the steam coming from the company's chimney.

Airline officials said that until this slurry filter is installed, on some humid days they would still be faced with the prospect of diverting aircraft to Kowloon, an operation which cost $1,000 to $1,300 for major airlines calling at Hongkong.

One Airline official said that in the past 50 per cent of the diversions his company had to

Dulles' Double Warning

Washington, June 8. Mr John Foster Dulles today gave the Communists a double barreled warning that the United States was ready to break off the Geneva talks unless early progress was made, and would strike back if Communist China intervened in the Indo-China war.

At his weekly press conference the Secretary of State implied that the United States would be willing to take initial action alone in Indo-China should the pattern of Communist aggression be radically changed by such an event as Communist China's entry into the conflict.

But in the State Department, the Defence Department and in diplomatic quarters here there is a firm conviction that Britain and the 14 other nations which fought for the United Nations in Korea would join in collective action if China rushed her forces to Indo-China.

Though these nations have not made their views known it is considered they established a precedent in the Korean war which could apply in the case of new aggression in Indo-China. This was the 16-nation declaration that any Communist breach of the armistice would be at the risk of retaliation which might not be confined to the frontiers of Korea.

GROWING FEELING

It is recognised in Washington that the question of United States or Allied intervention in Indo-China would be academic if there was a negotiated settlement of the Korean and Chinese problems at the Geneva conference.

But in the Eisenhower Administration there is a growing feeling that the Geneva talks leave no hope of a satisfactory agreement which would unify war-torn Korea or bring peace to Indo-China on terms which would not open the way for an eventual seizure of the whole country.

Mr Dulles gave public expression to this feeling when he charged that Communist negotiators were deliberately dragging out the talks while intensifying their military effort in Indo-China.

But he was careful to point out that primary responsibility for ending the Indo-China negotiations rests with France and the Associated States. As far as a Korean settlement is concerned Mr Dulles left no doubt the United States would like to end this phase of the talks as soon as possible.

It is no secret the Eisenhower Administration has always regarded the Korean negotiations as a waste of time and only participated because of the pressure of Allied and public opinion.—Reuter.

Armed Bandits Kill 3 Men

Colombo, June 8. Armed bandits killed three men, seriously injured a woman and burned down 11 houses yesterday at Tissamalarama, a small town in south Ceylon. The village was so terrorised that shopkeepers have closed their stores. Police reinforcements were rushed to the area to search for the bandits. Yesterday's outrage was said to be the outgrowth of a feud between two families. But the bandits stripped the houses of all valuables before burning them down.—United Press.

DIEN BIEN PHU

Pleven Accepts The Blame

Paris, June 8. "I assume all the responsibilities for the Dien Bien Phu affair," declared Mr Rene Pleven, Minister for National Defence, before a hushed House.

Speaking from the government bench, Mr Pleven recalled that when he visited Dien Bien Phu on Feb. 19, no one in the camp said that the position 'could be defended and no one dreamed of evacuating it.'

He said that on the day of his visit, "the evacuation was then already impossible." He added that with effect from the beginning of this year, a considerable effort had been undertaken to increase the strength of the air force in Indo-China.

Mr Pleven stated that there were 661 warplanes in Indo-China without counting the Civil Transport aircraft and during this period, the number of air force specialists have been increased by 2,000.

He asserted that supplies to the expeditionary force had never been neglected.

Mr Pleven explained that they did not wait for the Dien Bien Phu to reinforce the air force. They took the necessary steps immediately after the Bernum Conference and a considerable effort in its infrastructure had been achieved.

"We have increased the number of our aircraft carriers from one to three so that one of them can always be operating far Eastern waters," Mr Pleven added.—France Press.

Bought Car For 5s. 11d.

Birmingham, June 8. Mr William Harvey of Erdington today bought a 1934 Morris Minor car for five shillings and 11 pence after waiting 40 hours outside a Birmingham car dealer's shop. The car was advertised on the Saturday night. The proprietor decided to "have a fun" and let the car, originally priced at £280, go cheap.—China Mail Special.

15 YEARS FOR DERTINGER

Berlin, June 8. A former East German Foreign Minister, Herr Georg Dertinger, has been sentenced to 15 years' hard labour, the East German radio reported today.

The East German Radio asserted that the East German Supreme Court had tried a "gang of conspirators" led by Dertinger. They had planned to overthrow the East German Republic, nullify the "achievements of the workers and peasants' government" and restore "exploitation by the monopolists, landowners and fascists," it said.

Five other defendants were sentenced to terms ranging from three to 13 years' hard labour. Dertinger had been a member of the "Christian Democratic Party" of East Germany.—Reuter.

US Ambassador Says*Some Improvement In Japan In The Last Year

Washington, June 8.

The American Ambassador to Japan, Mr. John Allison, said today that the general situation in Japan has improved since he took up his Tokyo post about a year ago.

Mr. Allison made the statements in answer to reporters' questions after he called on President Eisenhower and spent 15 minutes with him. He described the visit as a courtesy call not connected with any specific issue.

Mr. Allison, who returned to the United States for consultations, timed the visit in order to be here during the visit of Japanese Premier Shigeru Yoshida. As it had been postponed, he said he planned tentatively to return to Japan at the end of next week.

The VC Whose Courage Failed

London, June 8.

It was war that nourished the courage of Frederick Hedges; and it was war that sapped his courage away. For in World War I he won the V.C. But as a result of World War II he took his life.

Frederick Hedges was a lieutenant when he displayed, in the words of his citation, the "most conspicuous bravery and initiative" that led to his V.C. German machine-guns were holding up a 1918 advance. With "the greatest determination and gallantry" Lieutenant Hedges went forward with a sergeant.

They captured six machine-guns and 14 prisoners; and they cleared the way for the advancing British.

That then was the courage of Frederick Hedges.

A DRINKING BOUT

The turning-point, when courage began to fade, came 24 years later. In 1942, the third year of World War II, his only son was killed.

From that moment life changed for Frederick Hedges. He began to worry, depressions clouded his mind, nervous disorders became frequent.

In 1951 he was found drunk in his car and a court fined him £50 and suspended his licence for two years. The day of the drinking bout was the anniversary of his son's death.

The end of Frederick Hedges' courage and with it the end of his life at 57, came last Saturday. He was found hanged at his home in Harrogate.

At yesterday's inquest the coroner, Mr. E. J. Heap, recorded a verdict that he took his life while the mind's balance was disturbed.

Said Mr. Heap: "It is very tragic that a man who won this medal for gallantry should end his life in this way."

He said he would first go to New York to meet with businessmen who were interested in commercial opportunities in Japan.

Mr. Allison declined to comment on the recent disturbance in the Japanese Diet or the effect that these and other difficulties may have on the Yoshida Government's programme. He said all he knew about the disturbances was what he read in the newspapers. Generally speaking, however, he said, there has been "some improvement" in the situation in Japan.

"The austerity programme of the Japanese Government is beginning to show results," he said. "Prices have gone down a little. The Government is beginning to do something about its big trade deficit which in the past had been made up by United States procurement for Korea."

ECONOMIC SITUATION Furthermore, he said, the recent disturbances should not obscure the basic importance of the action of the Japanese Diet in approving the Mutual Security Agreement with the United States and in passing the defence bills.

The economic situation, he said, had also been helped by the fact that there had been no recurrence of the disastrous floods of last year.

Another favourable tendency, he said, was the increase in revenue from the tourist industry. Japan earned about $50,000,000 from tourism last year, as compared to $30,000,000 the year before, Mr. Allison said. Mr. Allison had no comment on the bill for abolishing autonomous local Police forces and placing all Police power in the hands of the Central Government. He said that was an internal Japanese matter.—United Press.

Plea By A Buddhist Monk

Caux, Switzerland, June 8.

A Buddhist monk from Thailand appealed today to men everywhere to abide by the four basic principles of the Moral Re-armament (MRA) movement "if we are to build a new world."

Phra Pannananda, first Thai Buddhist monk ever to attend a conference in Europe, was dressed in the saffron robes of the priesthood as he spoke to the delegates from 25 countries attending the conference.

He said he had come to the conference because "if we are to build a new world, unity must come first."

"I did not know how to find unity until I heard of MRA," he said. "I realised that the four absolute standards of honesty, purity, unselfishness and love were the first step and that every man can follow them without delay."—United Press.

Miss Webster, A Librarian Says:*British Are Far More "Bookish" Than The Americans

London, June 9.

Just returned from a six months' stay in the United States, and trying to get used to British reading habits again, is Miss Monica Webster, branch librarian at Northfleet, Kent.

Across the Atlantic Miss Webster soon found that the British are far more "bookish" than the Americans.

"In proportion to the population, there are three times as many book shops in Britain as in America," she said.

"I think this is mainly due to television which starts at nine o'clock in the morning in the States, and the tremendous number of clubs and other organisations there."

"A WHOLE MORNING" "Also everyone reads a great many periodicals, and, of course, it takes a whole morning to read one of their enormous newspapers."

During her stay in America, Miss Webster worked with the Illinois State Library at regional centres, and visited libraries in hospitals, schools, and university colleges.

"Parents and teachers over there are worried about the sadistic type of comic American children read so much," Miss Webster went on.

Paris, June 8.

The death toll of highway accidents over the Whitsun weekend in France reached 60 today.

A total of 125 persons were seriously injured. This figure marks a sharp decrease over last year's death rate for the holiday when 80 persons were killed. More than 75 per cent of the accidents were due to violation of traffic rules, it was revealed.—France-Press.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Watch Partner For Valuable Tips

By OSWALD JACOBY

WHEN an expert doubles a slam that has been bid voluntarily, he is trying to steer his partner to the "killing" opening lead. For many years I followed the convention that I followed the lead for a lead in the first suit bid by the dummy, but in the last few years I have swung over to the view that the double should merely ask for an unusual lead.

The difference can be enormous, as may be seen in today's hand, taken from my brand-new book, "What's New in Bridge."

If you are West, you must pick the right opening lead to defeat this slam. The double warns you not to lead hearts, your partner's bid suit. Since a trump lead is out of the question (it is almost always the worst possible lead against a slam), you must choose between diamonds and clubs.

Your partner cannot be void of clubs, because he merely overcalled with one heart; if he had been really short in clubs, he probably would have made a takeout double of one club. If your partner has club trumps, it is extremely unlikely that he needs an immediate club lead to make sure of those tricks. Hence you have every reason to believe that your partner's double calls for a diamond lead.

If you come to this correct conclusion, a diamond lead will permit your partner to take the first two tricks. If you lead anything else, declarer will easily take 13 tricks with six spades, six clubs, and the ace of hearts.

You might quite reasonably quarrel with North's jump raise to three spades. I agree with you that this is a slight overbid. Nevertheless, South will make this slam unless the defence is on its toes.

1 Diamond 1 Spade ?

You, South, hold: Spades A-6, Hearts 5-2, Diamonds K-Q-9-5, Clubs A-Q-J-4-2. What do you do?

A—Bid three clubs. You have 10 points in high cards, 1 point extra for high cards in your partner's bid suit, and 2 points for the doubletons. This is ample for a jump take-out, particularly since your two aces entitle you to be interested in a slam.

TODAY'S QUESTION

The bidding is the same as in the question just answered.

You, South, hold: Spades 7-6, Hearts 5-2, Diamonds K-Q-9-5, Clubs A-Q-J-4-2. What do you do?

Answer Tomorrow.

YOUR BIRTHDAY... By STELLA

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 9

BORN today, you have about everything that one might wish for: fame and success—talent; business ability when combined with a partner; independence in ideas and action; sympathy with the problems of others; and last but not least, the ability to take care of detail with precision. In addition, you have social charm and know how to secure the co-operation of those who work with you.

Yet, you must be warned against a self-centered pride which sometimes stands in your way. You would starve rather than ask help from anyone, and you are too inclined to work at such a high pitch that your nervous energy becomes too easily depleted. Learn to relax at regular intervals and you will last longer.

THURSDAY, JUNE 10

GEMINI (May 21-June 21)—Be very careful of details which may appear very important than you know.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)—Taking everything too much for granted is dangerous. Investigate all new plans before adopting them.

"MURIEL" he hissed through clenched teeth.

The girl winced, and mixed herself a Geneva Split.

Prodrom: How on earth could anybody hiss "Muriel" through clenched teeth? Try it.

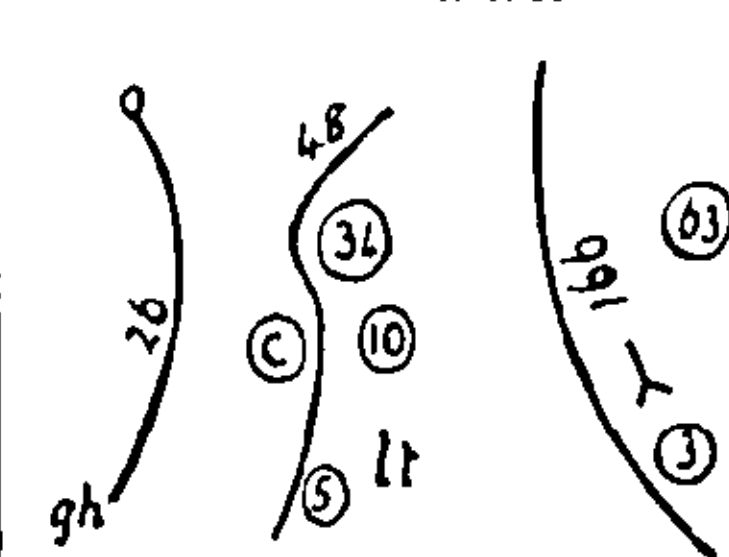

Myself: Even if he didn't hiss the word, his manner was that of a hisser.

Prodrom: You should call her Zaza.

Myself: Kindly mind your own business.

In passing

I READ that an animal trainer, while kissing a penguin, was bitten by a seal, which proves, if proof were needed, that the trainer should have turned at once to the seal and kissed it. The penguin would have bitten him, and all three could then have resumed the more important business of the day. I knew a lady who boasted that she had stroked the Oxford crew, in mere friendship, but only number six had the decency to purr.

You women are a little more on the serious side; you are fond of society and enjoy fine clothes and entertainments. You make splendid hostesses and are usually such a success at this that you do not cultivate your mind quite as much as you should. Attached to your home, you will be happiest if you work early in life.

Among those who were born on this date are: Leopold Auer, violinist; John Howard Payne, composer; Samuel N. Behrman, playwright; and Francis M. Finch, jurist and poet.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—If you are confident that you are right then go ahead. If in doubt, don't hesitate to ask for advice.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—You won't receive letters if you don't write them. Catch up on your correspondence at once.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—Plan an evening of pleasure. All work can prove uninteresting. One needs some pleasure along the way.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23)—If possible, avoid entering to gossip. If you must listen, forget it. Don't pass it on to others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 24-Dec. 23)—Reason, rather than instinct or intuition, should be your guide just now in making a decision.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 24-Jan. 23)—Wise judgment, combined with experience and a willingness to work hard, should bring you near your goal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 24-Feb. 23)—Some good reading could be helpful in broadening your outlook on life. Could bring a promotion, too.

PISCES (Feb. 24-Mar. 23)—Conserve your energy. Don't take the best policy. Don't dive off the deep end unless you can swim.

ARIES (Mar. 24-Apr. 23)—Being too critical, unless you can make a constructive suggestion, is just a waste of time today.

TAURUS (Apr. 24-May 23)—Keep your nose to the grindstone despite distracting diversions, and get an important job finished.

Mr. Merlin's Magical "Ponies"

—The Shadows "Rode" on Two Feather Dusters—

By MAX TRELL

KNARF, the shadow-boy with the turned-about name, was saying to his sister Hanid: "I wish I had a pony."

"Yes," said Knarf, "would be wonderful if we both had ponies. We could both go riding all through the woods and around the hill and across the meadow and over the brook and back home again."

At this moment, Knarf and Hanid heard the voice of Mr. Merlin the Magician saying: "Giddyap, there! Giddyap!"

The next second, Mr. Merlin the Magician appeared from behind the bookcase where he lived.

Knarf and Hanid were sure that Mr. Merlin was coming out riding on a pony. To their surprise and disappointment, they saw that he was only riding on a broomstick.

He wasn't riding very high. The broomstick was just an inch or two above the floor. It just glided around a bit over the carpet and around the chairs.

Finally Mr. Merlin called out "Whoa!" in a loud voice. At this, the broomstick fell flat on the floor and Hanid fell down on top of it.

A Reckless Steed
Knarf and Hanid helped Mr. Merlin to his feet. As for the broomstick, it did a very strange thing indeed. It lifted itself up and went sweeping around the room.

"Whoa!" shouted Mr. Merlin. But the broomstick didn't whoa at all. Mr. Merlin started running after it. So did Knarf and Hanid. At last they drove it into a corner.

But their troubles weren't over yet. The broomstick began beating at them, slapping and whacking with all its might. Fortunately, Mr. Merlin seized it and held it quiet.

"The broomstick is worse than a wild pony," Mr. Merlin said to Knarf and Hanid.

"We were just wishing we had a pony to ride," Knarf said.

"Do you think we could ride that broomstick?" said Hanid.

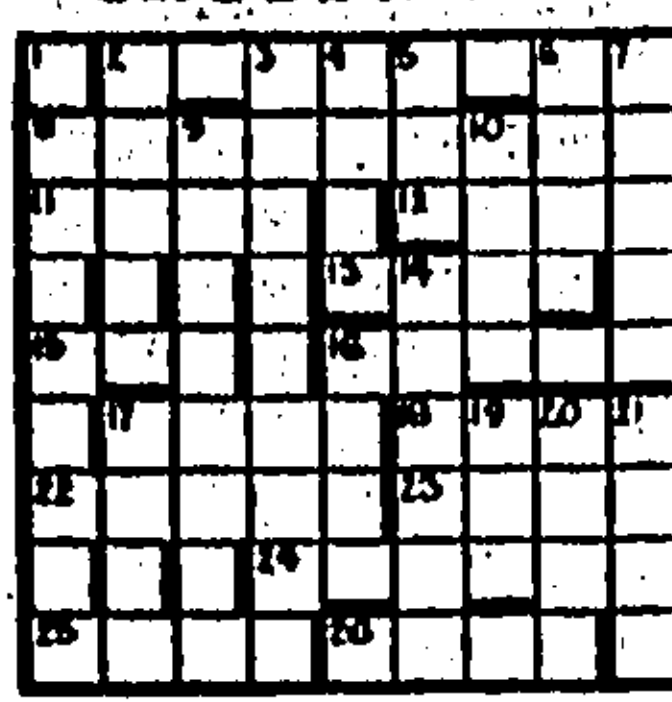

"Well," said Mr. Merlin, "I don't know. It's a little big for you two kids. I can get you two smaller and better behaved ones to ride."

Mr. Merlin gave a low whistle. Immediately two gentle-looking feather dusters came floating into the room from behind the bookcase.

"Here," said Mr. Merlin, as he gave Knarf and Hanid each one of the feather dusters.

"These little ponies have the nicest manners in the world,"

JOHN CLARKE'S CASEBOOK JOSEPH SHINES

THE policeman stood on a corner of a busy West End street, watching the traffic crawl by and the hurrying pedestrians. A dignified, benign but vigilant figure the policeman made, standing there like a shepherd regarding his flock or a schoolmaster keeping an eye on a class in which, should he relax his watch, mischief would instantly explode.

But the policeman's flock was behaving that afternoon in an exemplary manner. No motorcars were trying to park their cars in forbidden places, no motor vans were being robbed just there. All was serene. And yet...

SOMETHING WRONG?

LIKE some detective in fiction, the officer had an uneasy feeling that all was not quite so well as it seemed. Something was wrong somewhere, and try as he might, he could not think what.

His skilled, observant eye ranged over the familiar scene. There were the busy newspaper sellers at their pitches, the splendid commissionaire at his post by the restaurant door, there was the cab rank, there the scarlet-coated bootblack...

The officer drew a short, startled breath. The scarlet-coated bootblack was not there. In his customary place, his by licence and tradition, was a stranger. A wisplish-haired man with a whimsical face, whose only livery was rags, and who was cleaning a customer's shoes with vigour and every show of pleasure.

I'M BUSY
SATISFIED, the customer said for the service and left. Another at once took his place and the ragged man went to work again with gusto.

The policeman let him flinch, then marched over, and the tyre, whose mind was all on his work, was about to pick up the constabular left foot, when the officer called him to order. "I am arresting you," he said, "for unauthorised occupation of a stand licensed to a bootblack."

"Oh no, I'm busy, do go away, there's customers waiting," said Joseph. He persisted so long in refusing to move that at last the officer, after a moment's delay, there were two charges against him. Unauthorised occupation, and obstruction of the officer in the execution of his duty.

PAID A BOB?
THE story was told to Mr. Bertram Reece. "I would like to point out," said the officer, "that this man has made two applications to the police for a bootblack's licence. These have been refused. On what grounds, I do not know."

"It was another man's pitch, where you arrested him, was it?" the magistrate asked. He was told that it was.

"But listen," Joseph put in. "I paid a bob for a permit, and they said they'd give me one. And when I go to this place, people keep on coming wanting shoes cleaned."

"I've no doubt you were performing a useful service," said Mr. Reece.

NEW VISTAS

"AHEM, sir," said the officer. "I understand there is a medical history. This man was discharged from the Army on medical grounds. He's been working in hotels, lately."

"What you'd better do is get some job in a hotel and clean shoes there," said the magistrate to Joseph. "I'll discharge you conditionally."

"Thank you, sir," said Joseph. A great, beaming grin spread over his face. He had only done kitchen work in hotels before. The magistrate's suggestion opened up new vistas of enchantment—miles of hotel corridors with shoes outside each bedroom door, waiting to be cleaned. Shoes, shoes, shoes, in a never-ending supply. He hurried away to get the beautiful job.

Vow To Wipe Out Terrorism

Tunis, June 8.
The French authorities vowed tonight to wipe out terrorism in this troubled North African protectorate and revealed a tough security plan involving almost general mobilisation of all available forces to protect French and Tunisian farmers from the attacks of Fellaghas (outlaws).

"French and Tunisians have been forced to fight the battle of the wheat. This battle they shall pursue to the end with the most inflexible determination," said a communique issued by the French Residency General here.

"Operation Harvest" as it was called, was designed to give military and armed protection to French and Tunisian farmers at the time of the wheat harvest. Gangs of fellaghas have been spreading terror in several parts of the country by murdering French settlers and setting their wheat fields afire.

"Everything shall be done so that despite criminals attempting to terrorise, ruin and starve Tunisia, the harvest shall be effected under good conditions throughout the territory," said the communique.

The communique disclosed that all the protection measures were worked out at a meeting last Monday between French military and civilian authorities responsible for public order in Tunisia. The measures envisaged included the pooling of the necessary machinery for the harvest of French and Tunisian agriculture and the work being done in common under the protection of armed forces.—United Press.

New Sign Of Collective Leadership

Moscow, June 9.
Soviet newspapers yesterday stressed the Government's declared principle of "collective leadership" by printing the names of the nation's nine top leaders in strict alphabetical order.

This was the first time the names of Soviet leaders had appeared in this way. Only nine days ago when a similar list was published after a Red Square parade, Mr. Georgi Malenkov topped the roll.

In Pravda, Izvestia and other papers yesterday, Malenkov's name was fourth. The Foreign Minister, Mr. Vyacheslav Molotov, was sixth and the Communist Party Secretary, Mr. Nikita Khrushchev, ninth.

The names were published in a report of the opening session of the Soviet Trade Union Congress. The list, following the Russian alphabet, was: Bulganin, Voroshilov, Kaganovich, Malenkov, Mikoyan, Molotov, Pervukhin, Saburov and Khrushchev.

On April 22, after the last Supreme Soviet session, they appeared as follows: Malenkov, Molotov, Khrushchev, Voroshilov, Bulganin, Kaganovich, Mikoyan, Saburov and Pervukhin.

This has been the standard listing since Stalin's death.—Reuter.

E. Germans To Buy British

London, June 9.
The first East German trade delegation to visit Britain announced here last night that the Government intended to buy more than £30 million worth of goods from British and other Western firms at the Leipzig fair in September.
Herr Bruno Theusscher, Secretary of the State-run East German Chamber of Commerce, told a press conference the fair would be a "shop window for the products of the entire Eastern world."
Russia, Communist China and the countries of Eastern Europe would have purchasing missions larger than ever before.—Reuter.

"SPEEDY" HELP FOR CHURCHES

Stern Action Taken In Guatemala

Guatemala City, June 8.
President Jacobo Arbenz suspended constitutional guarantees and assumed special powers today on the grounds that Guatemala's peace and order were threatened.

An executive decree approved by the Council of Ministers and Congress at 4.30 this morning suspended the freedoms of thought expression, including freedom of the press and of movement, assembly and correspondence, for 30 days.

(This means that the government is empowered to set up press, radio, telegraph and mail censorship, that no meetings will be permitted and that freedom of travel will be curtailed. Home searches without warrants will be permitted and all persons may be subject to indefinite arrest without formal indictment or trial.)

Prior to President Arbenz's decree, it was reported that Colonel Jose Lima, noted Opposition leader, had been arrested. It was also reported that Colonel Miguel Mendoza, a former presidential candidate, fled with his brother Rodolfo, a noted flier, when the latter took off in a private plane last Friday.

REAL REASON
The report said the real reason for Rodolfo Mendoza's flight to neighbouring El Salvador was to take his brother out of the country before the secret police seized him.

Ferdinand Schuppe, former deputy chief of the United States air mission here, left with the Mendoza brothers.

In what may have been one of the last opposition political comments to be published for some time, the independent evening newspaper El Espectador said last night that the Guatemalan Labour Party, another name for the Communist Party, was torn by a "deep split."

One faction, El Espectador said, wants "nationalist Communism" along the lines followed by Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia while the other wants to adhere closely to the Moscow line.

According to the newspaper, Jose Manuel Fortuny, Party Secretary General on leave of absence because of illness, "has lost his power within the Communist lines."—United Press.
